Deadlines:
- Internal Application: April 8, 2021
- Nominations: May 17, 2021
- Full Application: September 1, 2021

Opportunity Summary:
The Pew Scholars Program in the Biomedical Sciences supports the independent research conducted by young investigators of outstanding promise in sciences relevant to the advancement of human health. The Pew Charitable Trusts especially encourages proposals that are creative, innovative, and risk-taking. Based on their performance during their education and training, candidates should demonstrate outstanding promise as contributors in science relevant to human health. Strong proposals will incorporate particularly creative and innovative approaches.

Prior JHU grantees: Christian Kaiser (2015); Robert Johnston (2014); John Kim (2009); Victor Velculescu (2004); Mark Van Doren (2000); David Sullivan (2000); Charles Connor (1998); David Ginty (1996); Anthony Rosen (1995); Sarah Woodson (1993); Paul Rothman (1992); Carol Greider (1990); Carolyn Machamer (1990); Christopher Ross (1987)

Eligibility & Requirements:
- Hold a doctorate in biomedical sciences, medicine, or a related field.
- As of Sept. 1, 2021, hold a full-time appointment at the rank of assistant professor. (Appointments such as research assistant professor, adjunct assistant professor, assistant professor research track, visiting professor, or instructor are not eligible).
- Must not have been appointed as an assistant professor at any institution prior to June 14, 2017, whether or not such an appointment was on a tenure track. Time spent in clinical internships, residencies, in work toward board certification, or on parental leave does not count as part of this four-year limit. Candidates who took parental leave should contact Pew's program office to ensure that application reviewers are aware of their circumstances. Please note that eligibility criteria have been temporarily expanded to account for COVID-related lab shutdowns and research disruptions.
- May apply to the program a maximum of two times.
- If applicants have appointments at more than one eligible nominating institution or affiliate, they may not reapply in a subsequent year from a different nominating entity.
- May not be nominated for the Pew Scholars Program and the Pew-Stewart Scholars Program for Cancer Research in the same year.
