Opportunity Summary:
The Whiting Public Engagement Fellowship of $50,000 is for public-facing projects far enough along in development or execution that the nominee can present compelling, specific evidence that they will successfully engage the intended public. For the strongest Fellowship proposals, both the overall strategy and the practical plan to implement the project will be deeply developed, relationships with key collaborators will be in place, and connections with the intended public will have been cultivated. In some cases, the nominee and collaborators may already have tested the idea in a pilot, or the project itself may already be underway. *Note, the fellows program and seed program are entirely separate.

Whiting Foundation staff will hold (optional) information sessions to answer questions via Zoom on the first Wednesday of each month from February–June; nominators, nominees, and potential nominees can register here.

Eligibility & Requirements:
- To be eligible, nominees must be full- or part-time humanities faculty in both the 2020-21 and 2021-22 academic years. Faculty need not be on a tenure track to be eligible. Nominees must also be early-career: they should have received their doctorate between January 1, 2008 and December 31, 2020.
- Please see the attached RFP for a full description of eligible projects, briefly summarized below.
- Humanities fields: disciplines and subjects: This cycle is focussed on the following disciplines: history; the study of literature, visual art, music, and other arts; philosophy; and area studies combining these fields, like classics and African-American studies. (We distinguish interpretive humanities from creative arts, so choreographing a new dance piece would not be eligible but creating a film on the history of a choreographer’s work would be.)
- Approaches to public engagement: methods and media: A nominee can propose to use the funds from these programs for nearly any ambitious public-facing project, new or ongoing, grounded in one of our focus humanities discipline (see above). Project typically fit within one of the following categories: Public programming projects, including exhibits, public conversations, or walking tours; Community-engagement projects involving members of a defined public as co-creators, for example through community curation; K-12-focused projects, including the development of classroom resources and participatory projects with students and teachers; and Audiovisual projects, including podcasts, apps, and films.

Internal Nomination Process:
The JHU internal submissions requires:
- Two-page project plan that includes: project overview and intended outcomes; collaborators; description of existing work on similar subjects or in similar media; intended public and engagement plan; Non-academic skills required for success, and timeline. References may be included in addition to the two-page limit.

- PI CV
- Optional: Public-facing work sample (optional; up to 2 files or links):
