Opportunity Summary:

The Sloan Research Fellowships seek to stimulate fundamental research by early-career scientists and scholars of outstanding promise in chemistry, computer science, economics, mathematics, molecular biology, neuroscience, ocean sciences, physics, or related fields. These two-year fellowships are awarded yearly to 126 researchers in recognition of distinguished performance and a unique potential to make substantial contributions to their field. Successful candidates for a Fellowship generally have a strong record of significant independent research accomplishments that demonstrate creativity and the potential to become future leaders in the scientific community. Nominated candidates are normally several years past the completion of their Ph.D. in order to accumulate a competitive record of independent, significant research. Fellows are selected on the basis of their independent research accomplishments, creativity, and potential to become leaders in the scientific community through their contributions to their field.

Previous JHU grantees: Muyinatu Bell (2019)
